When such a worthy object is laid before the people, I feel safe in stating that such would receive hearty support. We are not an ungrateful people. As there are some who have ventilating engineer written on their stationary and sign boards, who have not the necessary qualifications for designing equipment for such Institutions, my advice is to engage the services of some well known firm who makes a specialty of such work, and who can refer to similar work installed by them, or to engage only those holding a certificate or diploma from a Domestic Engineering College or Institute. The great trouble. I have found in my travels, is that very many hold their own views as to what is...
