Not illustrated. 1909 Excerpt: .was followed by the creation, by the Board of Regents, of the office of chancellor, which was offered to the ex-president, with the continued use of the president s mansion. Boston has an outdoor school for tuberculosis children. It was begun last summer in an old orchard and proved so successful that it has been continued during the winter. In summer there was provision for resting as well as for work in gardening. At first few cared to play, but a week was generally enough to induce them to engage in quite active sports. Although sleeping at home, all these children improved, gained in weight and in spirits, and at the end of fifteen weeks nine of the thirty-two were discharged as arrested and sent back to their regular schools. The cost of operating the camp (borne by voluntary subscriptions) was a fraction over twenty-five cents a day for food, and a fraction over thirty-five for administration and training. In the winter, says the Springfield Republican, from which this notice is taken, life, as in the summer, is carried on in the open air except during storms. The desks and chairs are placed on individual platforms; blankets with pockets for the feet and legs are furnished when the weather demands them. MayMoving Disinfect as well as clean the house or apartment you move into. The former occupants may have left the germs of some disease.
