Excerpt: . . . so far as it respected their present feelings and future prospects, we shall pass it over, and only mention the information which Jeanie received from Butler concerning her sisters elopement, which contained many particulars that she had been unable to extract from. her father. Jeanie learned, therefore, that, for three days after her pardon had arrived. Effie had been the inmate of her fathers house at St. Leonards--that the interviews betwixt David and his erring child, which had taken place before she was liberated from prison, had been touching in the extreme; but Butler could not suppress his opinion, that, when he was freed from the apprehension of losing her in a manner so horrible, her father had tightened the bands of discipline, so as, in some degree, to gall the feelings, and aggravate the irritability of a spirit naturally impatient and petulant, and now doubly so from the...
