Not illustrated. 1876 Excerpt: .for exhibition at the College of Pharmacy in September next. You state that it is not now known whether the samples will ultimately be returned to the makers, or be presented to the College of Pharmacy, or be sold to pay expenses. In reply I have to state--1st. That samples, as such, have the privilege of free entry only when of no recognized or actual commercial value. 2d. Artioles which may be imported without payment of duty for exhibition by associations organized for the promotion of science, art, or industry are limited to statuary, paintings, and photographic pictures. (HeyPs Tariff, 1812.) 3d. If the samples are to be given to said college, to remain as the permanent property thereof, and a definite arrangement to that effect shall be made before importation, I am of opinion that upon that fact being proven to the satisfaction of the...
